LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 4.-Purdue defeated Wabash to-day by the score of 48 to 8. It was a hard fought game and Wabash earned the eight points she made. Purdue was greatly handicapped early in the game by the loss of Captain Finney, who retired with a sprained hip. His injury is not serious and he hopes to be out in a few days. The Wabash players out-weighted Purdue in the contest and made their gains principally through the line. Khoblen, Purdue's right guard, was off on account of injuries received in practice games and Kircheval played that position. Gerber hurt his ankle near the end of the first half and Downs did brilliant work in his place. In the second half Huddleson took Nelson Olin's place, he being ruled off for rough playing. Somerville, of Butler, gave good satisfaction as referee, but Horten, the physical director at Wabash, was criticised by the Purdue team for alleged partiality as umpire. Game was called shortly after 3 o'clock, with the teams lined up as follows: WABASH.

twelve yards on the Cornell wedge. Several shout-line gains followed, advancing the ball fifteen yards. Finney gained five yards around the end, but was injured when tackled and fumbled the ball. Wabash slowly carried the ball into Purdue's territory by line rushes, and Allen made a good run of about twenty-five yards around the end, falling on Finney, who was again hurt and retired in Buschman's favor. The loss of their captain seemed to demoralize Purdue, and for a while Wabash steadily gained, but lost the ball on a fumble. Purdue, by repeated advances through the Wabash line, carried the ball down the field, Fulkerson making the first touchdown after twenty minutes' playing, but failed on the goal kick. Purdue, 4. A twenty-eight-yard run by Allen and gains through the line brought the ball

The next touchdown was made by Buschman, after a well-guarded run of fifteen yards, and Fulkerson kicked goal. Purdue, 10. Hard playing by both sides followed, and the ball changed hands several times, Olin next scoring for Purdue. Just before time was called Allen made another touch-down for Wabash, Fry failing in the goal kick. Purdue, 16; Wabash, 8. Gerber hurt his ankle and his place was

In the second half Wabash was unable to add to her score, but Purdue, through good runs by Buschman, Downs, Little and Jamison, and good team work, scored stx more touchdowns, goal being kicked after four of them. It was a hard game throughout, Wabash putting up by far the best team Purdue has ever met in the Indiana College League. BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 4.-The second football game of the season here was played this afternoon before a great crowd. DePauw University and the Indiana University elevens contested, and the game resulted in 34 to 0 in favor of DePauw. The result was a complete surprise as the home team did not expect such a defeat. The home team played a much better game than usual, a pleasing feature being the absence of the ill feeling heratofore manifested between these two elevens. Stranger still, the umpire and referee were satisfactory to all. The teams lined up as follows: DE PAUW.

PRINCETON'S REVENGE.

The "Tigers" Defeat the Pennsylvanians by a Score of 4 to 0.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4 .- On Manheim field, in the presence of twenty thousand people, Princeton this afternoon secured revenge on Pennsylvania for the latter's defeat of them a year ago. It was unquestionably the hardest fought battle that has ever taken place in this city, and, while the INDIANA FOOTBALL LEAGUE "Tigers" prevented Pennsylvania from scoring, they were only able to secure a single touchdown. The heavy rain of the early morning made the field wet and slippery. The rain, however, ceased about half past 10 o'clock, and a short time later the gates were thrown open to the public. Until long after the game was started the crowd kept on coming, and at 2 o'clock, the hour set for the beginning of the game, it was estimated that fully twenty thousand people were on the grounds.

Princeton opened with a flying wedge, used so frequently by Cornell in their game with Princeton two weeks ago, and King gained twenty yards. The "Tigers" lost a few yards on the next down, and a few moments later the ball was fumbled and secured by Pennsylvania. The ball was taken by the red and blue to the center of the field, where Knipe kicked for thirty yards. Blake caught the ball and returned it, but it fell out of bounds and Pennsylvania secured it. Knipe made a gain of five yards through the center and ten yards more were gained before Princeton secured it on a fumble. Blake kicked it to Pennsylvania's ten-yard line, where it was given to the latter for off-side play. Three yards were gained on a plunge through the center by Knipe. Score at end of first half: 4 to θ in favor of Princeton.

In the second half, with the ball in the center of the field, the "Tigers" made short gains, but lost the ball on four downs and Brooke punted, King catching the ball and falling on it. King fumbled and Upton fell on the ball, and kicks by Brooke and Blake brought the ball to the center of the field. King was sent around the end for a ten yards' gain, and after Pennsylvania and Princeton had successively secured the ball, again went round gained three yards more before a fumble gave the ball to Pennsylvania. Brooke punted and Black returned it to the center of the field. Pennsylvania and Princeton each lost the ball on fumbles and Osgood made the first and only long run of the game when he carried the ball for twenty LittleLeft end vards before being downed. Barnett took the place of Morse, who was injured, and Reese was at the same time disqualified for slugging. Time was called without either side scoring. Touchdown, Ward. HARVARD WON.

The Cornell Eleven Beaten 34 to 0 on Manhattan Field. NEW YORK, Nov. 4.-At a quarter to o'clock this afternoon the Harvard and Cornell football teams waded through the swamp into which Manhattan field had been converted by several hours of rain. When the umpire, Perry Trafford, and Referee C. W. Sheldon made their appearance a burst of applause went up. Seven minutes after the opening Brewer was forced through the center, and with good interference made the first touchdown. Fairchild kicked a goal. The ball was taken back. Cornell lost it in short order. Brewer made a run of thirty yards into Cornell's territory. Cornell again took the ball back. It was rushed around the field without much advantage to either side. Harvard got the bail and forced Clark through and scored a touchdown. After a few minutes Brewer was forced over for a touchdown and Fairchild kicked a goal. Score at the end of the first half: Harvard, 28: Cornell, 0. In the second half Diehl was at left end for Cornell, in place of Young, who was at full back. Dalsey had taken Taussig's place at right end. The Harvard team was intact, with the exception of Wrightington. who had been replaced by Ciark. A few minutes later Brewer was forced to leave the field and Gray came into the game as full back. Harvard opened with the wedge, gaining seven yards. In the next two downs there was no gain, and on the third Cornell gained the ball. The leather stayed where it was for two hours. Then Harvard secured it again. A clever tackle by Clark stopped Dyer after the latter had got round the end for twenty yards. Brewer then went through the center twice for seven and twelve yards, and two more were gained in the third down. Clark then got well away round the end and over the line between the posts. Fairchild kicked a goal. Time was called with a score of 34 to 0 in favor of the Cambridge men.

From 300 to 1,000 Persons Killed at Santander by an Explosion.

Steamship Loaded with Dynamite Blown to Atoms While at a Quay and the City Set on Fire.

CIVIL GOVERNOR MANGLED

And Many Other Officials and Guards Killed or Injured.

Other Vessels Sunk and Their Crews Drowned and a Railroad Train Demolished-General Foreign News.

MADRID, Nov. 4. - The steamer Volo. loaded with dynamite, blew up, near Santander, last night. Many persons were killed. The Volo, which had just arrived from Cardiff, caught fire from some unknown cause. The officials of Santander were unaware that the Volo was loaded with dynamite, for they sent all the fire department to the scene, the Governor of the province, the chief municipal officers and many of the leading citizens superintending the efforts to subdue the fire on board the steamer. Suddenly there were cries of alarm from those working about the Volo. The news spread with rapidity that the ship was loaded with dynamite, and that the flames were rapidly approaching the terrible cargo. Before the crowd had time to rush backward there was a dull roar, followed by a fearful burst of flame and a deafening explosion which blew the quay into fragments, set fire to a number of adjacent houses and which smashed the windows in every house for miles around. The explosion did an enormous amount of damage. Many citizens were killed, including several representatives of the municipal and provincial governments, who were watching the efforts made by the firemen to extinguish the fire. Among the prominent people believed to have been blown to atoms by the explosion is the Governor of the province, who was last seen in the front rank of those fighting the fire. Many others who were upon the wharf a moment before the dynamite blew the ship and wharf into splinters are missing. The inhabitants were so dazed by the explosion and by the rapid spread of the flames from house to house that for a long time afterwards they appeared to be utterly unable to make any attempt to check the further spread of the fire, which, as this dispatch was sent, was still eating house after house and threatening destruction of the entire city. All towns and villages in the neighborhood of Santander have sent their fire engines to the scene, and a strong and combined effort is being made to save property. The town of Santander is situated on a headland and has a large port in the Bay of Biscay. It is the terminus of a railway from Madrid.

Further details received here from Santander say that in addition to the officers reported killed, the president of the provincial Council and the colonel and chief officers of the civic guard of Santander were seriously wounded by the explosion. It is also announced here that the whole city is likely to be destroyed and a large number of its population of over 30,000 people will be rendered homeless. A dreadful panic prevails upon all sides.

Private telegrams received here say that over a thousand people met their death by the fire and explosion. In addition, a transatlantic steamer was burned and forty of her crew met death on board of her. All those on board the tug boat along side the fated steamer, as well as the officersand crew of the transatlantic liner Alphonso II, were killed by the explosion. he body of the civil governor, who was directing the operations on the quay, has been recovered, as well as the bodies of a number of the officials. Among the reported killed is the Marquis Pombo. It has been ascertained that the dynamiteloaded steamer which caused this terrible destruction was the Cabo Muchicaco, belonging to Bilbao, and not the British steamer Volo, as at first reported. The authorities of Santander are highly censured on all sides for allowing the steamer to violate the port regulations, which forbid the discharge of explosives at the quay side. On the other hand, it is claimed that the authorities were not aware of the dangerous nature of the steamer's car- has not yet come to such a pass as this, go or they certainly would not have been poihardy as to venture on board of her and to allow thousands of people around her while she was on fire. Every possible assistance has now been sent to Santander, where hundreds of doctors are already at work. A number of temporary hospitals have been erected in buildings untouched by the flames and there the doctors and their assistants are doing everything possible in this dire extremity. The troops sent to the spot are also rendering great service in blowing up buildings across the pathway of the flames and the district still threatened with conflagration. All the inhabitants of the neighborhood of Santander have thrown open their houses for the reception of the wounded and homeless. No definite estimate of the loss of life has been received up to the hour this dispatch was sent, but there has yet been no denial of the statements made in private and other dispatches to the effect that the death list will be figured by the thousand instead of by the hundreds.

The Queen Regent as soon as she learned of the extent of the disaster at Santander. expressed a desire to go there, but the government dissuaded her and sent the Minister of Finance to represent the government and do all in his power to relieve the sufferers. The Minister, who has property relations in Santander, started for that place to-night. He was accompanied by the Senators and members of the Chamber of Deputies, from the Santander district. It is now officially estimated that . the dead will number over three hundred. The number of missing and injured is enormous. Many of the injured are dying owing to the want of prompt medical assistance. Twenty-seven civic guards and all members of the police force but two were killed, Among the other victims are the civic governor, the colonel of a regiment, three naval officers, the head port pilot and the judge fiscal. A majority of the passengers of a train which arrived at the moment of the explosion were also killed. It appears that the steamer which exploded carried five hundred packages of dynamite, although the officers only declared twenty, which were landed ODDITIES OF FAMOUS MEN. Stories of Eccentric Painters Who Might Have Passed for Cranks. Harper's Young People.

There is probably no profession in the whole range of human effort in which more eccentric things are done by its followers than in that of the painter. The following stories culled from various sources indicate the truth of this assertion, and will be found amusing as well: Delacroix, the painter, was walking out one day in Paris with a friend of his, when he fell into a brown study. "What is up with you now," said the "I can't get a certain shade of yellow," replied the artist. "What sort of yellow?" Just then a cab drove past.

"The very thing," the painter gasped out. 'Stop! Stop! "I am engaged," the cabby replied, without stopping. Delacroix started in pursuit, and at a steep place in the Rue des Martyrs overtook the cab. Opening the door, he said in tones of entreaty to the passenger inside: "Do please tell your driver to stop; I want your complexion for a painting on which I am at work. There is a color merchant close at hand. I shall not detain you above five minutes, and in acknowledgment of the service you render me I will present you with a sketch of my

The bargain was struck; Delacroix got his yellow and a few months later the "fare" received a sketch of his "Assassination of the Archbishop of Liege."

Another artist celebrated in his day as a successful painter of portraits while making a counterfeit presentment of a lady perceived that when he came to draw the mouth she tried to render it smaller by contracting her lips. "Pray do not trouble yourself so much, madam," he exclaimed. "If you like I will draw your face without any mouth at all." A somewhat eccentric individual was the Flemish painter Craasbeck, of whom it is told that once, fearing that his wife had ceased to love him, and anxious to discover if his fears were founded on fact, he resolved upon an extraordinary test. He tore his blouse from his chest and painted just above his heart a very vivid represen-tation of a wound. He then painted his lips and cheeks so that they presented a ghastly aspect, covered his palette knife and his garments with coots of red paint, gave a shriek and fell to the floor as if dead. The test was successful. Madame Craasbeck, hearing the shriek, rushed into the room, and, supposing that her husband had been killed or killed himself, gave way to what was to the supposed victim on the floor a series of very gradfying out-bursts of grief. What the lady said when her lord and master sat up and informed her that he was only shamming, history does not record; but if she failed to go from one extreme to the other and give him a round scolding she certainly missed a great op-portunity and showed herself a woman of ONLY 15 CENTS A WEEK narvelous self-control.
